COMPILER'S NOTE.

The publication of these few pages is designed to insure the preservation and perpetuation of the form and description of the Waldron Arms, as handed down for nearly $60 years, together with a direct male line of descent, more especially from our first American ancestor-Baron Resolved Waldron -from whom all the American branches of the family are descended, and who set sail from Holland in the good ship Dunderberg (Thunder Mountain) shortly after his marriage, in 1645, to seek his fortune in the New World Settling in New York (New Amsterdam price to 1664) the following year. he soon became one of the leading members of that enterprising and progressive community and held public positions of trust under Peter Stuyyesant, Governor, in the construction of this genealogical line, whereby those directly interested may at the very beginning recognize their connection, and, reading back from the present day, will be able more easily and satisfactorily to trace their ancestry, instead of starting at a remoteperiod and tracing down through succeeding generations.

No attempt is here made to trace the maternal kinship of our family, but simply and briefly to give a continuous male line of descent from our noble and chivalrous ancestors. The number and names of the descendants of those in direct line for several of the later generations are, however, incidentally enumerated, with other information immediately connected therewith. The latest generation of this family line is represented by La Monte R. Waldron (son of James A. Waldron), whose only child up to this time (1897)—a daughter—died in infancy. The line is further represented by George Albert Waldron, a younger brother of La Monte R.

Several years ago, when interest was revived

In a portion of the Waldron estate-that vast and at one time comparatively worthless tract of land situated in the upper part of New York City, known as the Harlem flats, which, after lying dormant for many years, begin rapidly to increase in value until it is now estimated to be worth more than $100,000,000, and for which the present holders can neither show nor pass title, but hold and use by might, rather than by right of possessiona keen interest was developed on the part of those bearing the family name, many of whom made strong efforts successfully to establish relationship with the rightful owners of the property in question. One of the most interested persons, and probably the most faithful and persistent worker in this direction, was the late Colonel Samuel Waldron, who spent several of the later years of his life in quest of data pertaining to our family history, and after traveling much in this country he visited Holland for the purpose of authenticating his lineage, and there obtained much valuable information

Lyons, Esq., of Antiqua and Philadelphia.— The Walronds of Lea, County Somerset, and Dulford, County Devon (descended from the Walronds of Bradfield), now represented by Bethell Walrond, Esq., of Dulford House, only surviving son of the late Joseph Lyons Walrond, Esq., and Caroline, his wife, daughter of Edward Codrington, Esq., of Dodrington County Gloucester, etc., etc.

The Waldron family may well be proud of its distinguished ancestry. History records many notable examples of one of its chief characteristics—that of patrioitsm—and a willingness ever to "strive for the right." Thus, as early as A. D., 1029, Baron Rudolf Van Waldron, one of our first progenitors, served during the First Crusade, against the Moslems, under Godfrey of Bonillon (subsequently chosen as the First King of Jerue, lem), and for his gallant conduct was reward of with large estates, and also presented with the first Coat-of-Arms of our family. In 1154, Baron Richard Waldron, for valuable services rendered King Henry II of England, was also given a manor, with a pension and a Coat-of-Arms. Later, Colonel Humphrey Waldron was given a Coat-of-Arms and a large dowry by King Charles 1 of England for his assistance during the civil wars of his time. The family was well represented in the American Revolution, notably by Adolph Waldron, who, being an ardent detender of American liberty, in 1776 abandened to the Tories his ferry franchise (that of the first regular ferry between New York and Brooklyn, established by his father -Samuel Waldron-later known as Fulton Ferry), and left Brooklyn with the American army, returning a Captain with the victorious patriots on the British evacuation. November 25, 1783. Among other members of the family who participated in the War of 1812 was Evert G. Waldron, grandfather of the writer, while added lustre was given our name by the patriotic service rendered in the War of the Rebellion by several representatives of
